

Australia's largest corporate philanthropists support AIEF

The total amount given by Australia's top 50 corporate philanthropists in 2021 was $1.33 billion, 4% higher than the previous year. Many of AIEF's corporate partners and major supporters were among the most significant corporate contributors, highlighting their social responsibility and community investment.

Longstanding AIEF Partner BHP took out the number one spot, with Commonwealth Bank coming in at number five, and Fortescue Metals (the company behind the Munderoo Foundation) rounding out the top 10.

Other AIEF partners and supporters included in the list were South32 (13), KPMG (20), Future Generation Australia (28), and Crown Resorts Foundation (30).

These seven companies together contributed more than $400 million to social causes including Indigenous affairs, education, social inclusion, economic participation, health and mental health among other issues.

To all our partners and supporters, thank you for your continued commitment to championing educational opportunities for young Indigenous people and your support for the wider Australian community.
