

AIEF Partners attract, retain and develop

Attract, retain and develop talent stand out as mantras of this year's labour market, with companies across Australia rising to the challenge. LinkedIn's national 2023 Top Companies List acknowledges businesses leading the way.

AIEF congratulates two of our invaluable partners, Commonwealth Bank of Australia and SAP for featuring in the top 25 companies on the list this year.

Ranked the second-best place to work, Commonwealth Bank is one of Australia's leading financial service providers, working diligently to support their growing talent pool. Focusing on career development and well-being initiatives, CommBank continues to take strides in its longstanding commitment to the financial wellbeing of Indigenous Australians.

CommBank has been a dedicated AIEF partner since 2008, helping to support bright young Indigenous people to reach their full personal and professional potential.

Coming in at number 22, information technology leader SAP is recognised for its innovative retention and employee progression models. The company has incorporated mental health and well-being frameworks to support employees across the business.

A partner since 2014, SAP has championed AIEF's mission, with many enthusiastic team members volunteering their time and knowledge to AIEF Students and Alumni exploring career pathways. SAP has also provided a number of professional development and public speaking opportunities to students and alumni through their various events.

Both CommBank and SAP have welcomed AIEF Alumni into their networks, where they strengthen their professional skills and gain experience in leading national industries. We are proud and grateful to have these companies in our community.
